3.	WILLERS is Chief of the Mathematics Institute and MARUN is his assistant. This institute works on applied mathematics and has built several small mechanical calculators. WILLERS was talking about building an electronic computor, but no work had begun on the project.
4.	RECKNAGEL. Chief of the Physics Institute, is a younger man 50X1-HUM than most of the institute chiefs. He is very capable 50X1-HUM and most likely to produce significant results. He has been working with Zeiss, Jena, in the production of electrostatic focused electron microscopes, much like the AEG microscope of West Germahy.
_	REUTHER was assistant in the Photography Institute and has been chief of this institute His specialty is color photography. 50X1-HUM
6.	WIEDMANN is Chief of the X-Ray Institute. 50X1-HUM This institute was concerned in the past with industrial applications.
7.	The Inorganic Chemistry Institute is headed by SIMON, a specialist on the Raman effect. The Organic Chemistry Institute is headed by BOETIUS, a specialist in microanalysis. SCHWABE is Chief of Physical Chemistry and is a specialist in electro-chemistry. The Chief of the Color Chemistry Institute was KOENIG, a dye specialist. The Collodial Chemistry Institute was not active.
	The Electrical Power Institute and the High Voltage Institute were both headed by BINDER, who is a high-voltage specialist. BINDER was an academic member and is probably doing industrial consulting work now. The high-voltage laboratory was damaged during the war. The building had been rebuilt, the laboratory was re- 50X1-HUM conditioned. The laboratory had a 1 or 2 million volt generator.
9.	FRUEHAUF was Chief of the Electronics Institute, having replaced BARKHAUSEN. FRUEHAUF is 50X1-HUM just received a new building and can be expected to produce note- worthy developments.
